Introduction

. There are a hundred devices through which they could use these external resources to add to their income and wealth. A member of Simukai co-operative, which is based on a former white farm just south of Harare, summed up why.

Introduction

Women and Children First: Environment, Poverty and Sustainable Development.

Blacksmith, Baker, Roofing

Rural women report that their greatest need is to earn cash. He speaks as if no one is going to come up with a more imaginative way of bridging the chasm between what the people need to eat and what they can grow.

Update

After all, they have to deploy their resources to meet more immediate problems like catering to the poor, including supplying elementary education and drinking water. This time around it is different.

Blacksmith, Baker, Roofing

The best approach is to take women's current activities and raise productivity in order to increase earnings, or to change a subsistence activity into an income-generating one. About 66% of development projects tend to be funded for women's projects for health, nutrition, sanitation, and child care.
