It may be referred to as the Cathedral Church of Christ in Liverpool as recorded in the Document of Consecration or the Cathedral Church of the Risen Christ, Liverpool, being dedicated to Christ 'in especial remembrance of his most glorious Resurrection'. It was constructed entirely of local stone, including .

Exeter Cathedral, Devon

The cathedral hosts daily services and is famous for its choir. The decision to retain the Norman towers and walls during the Gothic rebuilding accounts for the comparative low height of Exeter Cathedral. The cloisters were damaged during the English Civil War and part was subsequently removed, though little else was affected, and the only other major damage occurred during World War II, when a bomb destroyed one of the chapels and part of the nave.
