Dialect is all around you Of course, if we accept that all vernacular language varieties are in some sense dialects, then this is a truism or statement of the obvious. It seems that most commenters have reservations about the accuracy of the map within their own native areas. He argues that, in the West Yorkshire community he researched, social networks influenced by changes in the once dominant textile industry have had a particular effect, especially on women's speech.

Regional accents of English

The western suburbs of Johannesburg Newlands, Triomf, which has now reverted to its old name , Westdene, etc. It is frequently found in Cockney, as in daughter, said by a teenager from the East End of London. In the case of Norfolk Island, Australian English is the primary influence, producing an accent which is like a softened version of an Australian accent.
