Romanticism

When leaders met at the Congress of Vienna 1815 to reorganise European affairs after the Napoleonic Wars, it became clear that the peoples' hopes for 'liberty, equality and fraternity' had not been realized. To put it simply, Neoclassical artists looked to the past in support of their preference for responsible, rational-minded individuals, while Romantics looked to the past to justify their non-rational emotional intuition. He studied with Antoine Vernet and with Pierre Guérin, in whose studio he met Delacroix.

History of Art: Romanticism

Only when each people, left to itself, develops and forms itself in accordance with its own peculiar quality, and only when in every people each individual develops himself in accordance with that common quality, as well as in accordance with his own peculiar quality—then, and then only, does the manifestation of divinity appear in its true mirror as it ought to be.
