It is your responsibility to create a fine balance between these two extremes and operate from a risk-neutral position. This allows sources of bias to be diagnosed, exposing their influence on the risk process.

Managing Group Risk Attitude

If attitudes were fixed inherent attributes of individuals, inborn and unchangeable, then while it might be possible to understand them it would never be possible to manage them.

Risk Attitude, Appetite, Tolerance and Threshold

Fear, excitement or attraction can lead us to adopt risk attitudes which a more rational assessment might not consider.
