Franklin Booth 60 Reproductions from the Originals Earnest Calkins 1925

Isolated on an Indiana farm and determined to be an artist, he studied what he saw on the pages of Scribner's, Harpers and the other illustrated magazines of the day.

Franklin Booth 60 Reproductions from the Originals Earnest Calkins 1925

They recall today the Golden Age of American Illustration when such giants as Pyle, Abbey, Remington, and Gibson set a standard hard to reach. I quite agree, least this great artist is lost in the dark halls of time.

Franklin Booth

This was eventually to become the basis for his unique line technique. By the early fifties, Alcala had amassed a boxful of clippings he had collected since childhood.
