Aphrodite : mœurs antiques (Book, 1992) [tools.github.ffxiv.cn]

Celle-ci en vient à aimer l'homme qui est allé jusqu'au crime pour elle, mais Démétrios la rejette, son rêve lui suffit. One of the institutions, the Ensar Foundation, is known for its close links to the Turkish government.

Mœurs Antiques

Los recursos que utiliza son para mantener una tensión sensual, sin embargo también hay una exageración paródica de las novelas eróticas de la época que simplemente te hacen partir de la risa. Piqued into desire by her resistance, Démétrios is spurred to commit theft and murder for her, to win the three objects she demands in return for her charms: a rival courtesan's silver mirror, the ivory comb of an Egyptian priestess, and the pearl necklace that adorns the cult image in the temple of Aphrodite. Démétrios, who is used to being loved for his physical beauty and skill, but not used to loving someone, is the main mouthpiece of the Decadent worldview here.
