Economy of British Columbia

Companies and organizations with multiple sites must obtain a separate licence for each site. In this project, we bring together essays by many of British Columbia's biodiversity experts that explore and discuss the biodiversity of the province.

Native plant resources for the Pacific Northwest

The tidal mills were mainly used for grain grinding and were of similar design to the conventional water mills with the addition of a dam and reservoir. These locations include the Bristol Channel, Pentland Firth, the Hebrides, in the Irish Sea, the North Channel, Alderney Race, the Isle of Wight, the Orkneys and the Shetlands.

Tidal Power

This included public meetings, consultation with stakeholders from a variety of marine sectors, and guidance from the marine science and technical communities.

Search Artists, Art galleries and Art Resources in British Columbia

The high carbon and nitrogen stable isotope values found in the bulk collagen samples of this caribou prompted further investigation into its diet and palaeoecological context. Together with the regulations, licence conditions are used to regulate and govern the aquaculture industry in BC.

MaPP

A landfile number is assigned to each tenure issued. DFO, Transport Canada and the province of BC share a single harmonized aquaculture application. These indigenous cultures have vast traditional ecological knowledge TEK of the local area.
