East and West in the World Empire of Alexander: Essays in Honour of Brian Bosworth

<sup>2</sup> The idealising tendencies of the pagan bios and vita were reinforced by a complementary tradition, that of epideictic rhetoric, formulated by Aristotle in his Rhetoric I. The fact that Roger of Howden chronicled contemporary events from 1170 to 1201, and in enough detail to fill five Rolls Series volumes, raises these hopes. Maitland shows that the association of Alexander with the Homeric hero is a fabrication of a later date, perhaps the early third century BCE.

Consensus on Early Ed. Value, But Policy Questions Remain

Still, it is an open question whether prekindergarten programs—including such landmarks as federally funded Head Start—are uniformly good enough to lead to those positive results and whether the same positive results will be seen by all children who participate. But we must resist with all our strength the self-righteousness and assumed importance, the political opportunism of those who would have us believe these skirmishes constitute the real war against Communism.
