Factors influencing food choices of adolescents: findings from focus

He developed a hierarchy of needs, shaped like a pyramid, which ranges from the most essential immediate physical needs such as hunger, thirst, and shelter to the most luxurious nonessentials.

The Factors That Influence Our Food Choices

Age and Stage in the Life Cycle: Needs of a person changes with age and at different stages of his life.

What are the 5 Factors Influencing Consumer Behavior?

However, individuals with normal weight or overweight may differ in their coping strategies when snack foods are freely available and also in their compensatory mechanisms at subsequent meals. Those with physical disabilities or debilitating chronic illnesses were likely to encounter difficulties accessing food stores in their own community because of a lack of stores with disability access features. Other observational evidence supports a reduced risk for obesity and related conditions associated with better access to healthy foods.

What are the 5 Factors Influencing Consumer Behavior?

After a brief review of the data and analytical challenges to research designed to broaden understanding of the issues facing SNAP participants, the final section presents a summary of findings and conclusions. In some countries, social class is a position inherited, assigned by birth or by tradition.
