The CBI recently said around half of UK manufacturers are worried access to materials and components might limit their output over the next quarter — the highest level for this question in its survey since the 1970s. Larger businesses will be better able to absorb the substantial amounts of new and permanent red tape for importing and exporting.

2021 Construction Inflation

By 3rd quarter 2021, nonresidential buildings volume is forecast down another 15% lower than December 2020, or 25% below the Feb 2020 peak. Total volume of work is declining and new projects available out to bid is still depressed, so pressure on margins still exists.

Market forecast: Uncertainty looms

This influences the level of overall construction demand, especially in non-housing construction subsectors.

Construction output indices (OPIs) QMI

The accuracy and reliability of the OPIs is dependent on that of the source data.

Construction output indices (OPIs) QMI

Pricing variability has increased, which is to be expected in a market seeing more competition.

Product offering

Publication is approximately six weeks after end of the quarterly period.

G&T Market Intelligence

Typically, when work volume decreases, the bidding environment gets more competitive.
