And the water- wheel of thought, is it going around now, cups empty, carrying only shadows? I feel life is too short and none of us are getting any younger. For there were countless numbers of stars: each time we looked above we were astounded by the swiftness of their daring play, while in our hearts we felt safe and secure watching these brilliant bodies disintegrate, knowing somehow we had survived their fall.

Funeral Poems

There is No Night Without a Dawning There is no night without a dawning No winter without a spring And beyond the dark horizon Our hearts will once more sing For those who leave us for a while Have only gone away Out of a restless, care worn world Into a brighter day Helen Steiner Rice 1900-1981 79. If I should never hear the thrushes wake Long before the sunrise in the glimmering dawn. Auden of the 20th century.

Funeral Poems

For they must needs be present, that love and live in that which is omnipresent. The best thing about this anthology is that it's not rife with depressing poems about unrequited love.

I am on the way with you and therefore I love you. And may there be no sadness of farewell, When I embark; For though from out our bourne of Time and Place The flood may bear me far, I hope to see my Pilot face to face When I have crossed the bar. I'd like the tears of those who grieve, to dry before the sun; Of happy memories that I leave when life is done.

This essay contends that these two thinkers were not in fact the originator of conceptual metaphor and that, as Richards says, the theorization of this type of metaphor goes back to the olden times. Think how he must be wishing that we could know today how nothing but our sadness can really pass away. O never give the heart outright, For they, for all smooth lips can say, Have given their hearts up to the play.

Funeral Poems

There were some of the popular ones that I recognized but there was also a rich diversity of style, era and genre. And may there be no moaning of the bar, When I put out to sea, But such a tide as moving seems asleep, Too full for sound and foam, When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again home.
