Lester Pearson, a Canadian prime minister, later reflected: Had we been unable to solve the problem of India's admission as a republic, we would not have the Commonwealth we have today with all the new members from Asia and Africa. These policy issues were not the sole preserve of the Commonwealth Coordination Department, or even the FCO, so the coordination across Whitehall and with the Commonwealth Secretariat was a major undertaking. At the same time, the concept has never been as inviolable, either in law or in practice, as a formal legal definition might imply.
