What to watch as Trump's lawyers deliver impeachment defense

This work was produced in cooperation with the Corporation of London's electrical contractors and drain engineers and is set to come on with the street lights. Each camera looked out over the English Channel, framing the horizon and forming part of a panoramic series. The work made it possible for visitors to both galleries to become active participants in the realisation of the work, embodied as live performers within it, effectively existing in two places at once.
