Boyce's requests to return to Cermak were denied, but, according to his deposition, he made the requests to an Officer Washington and to a paramedic. These have been accepted by the Committee and will be submitted to the Cabinet. This was the first time in four years that the two clubs had played each other, and the first ever in the League Cup.

The Women's Equal Rights Law of 1951 establishes among other things the equality of the sexes in the eyes of the law, except in matters relating to marriage and divorce ibid. Redknapp's time at West Ham was notable for the turnover of players during his tenure and for the level of attractive football and success which had not been seen since the managership of John Lyall.
