

Medieval London widows, 1300-1500

Hambleton Press - Centre for Metropolitan History

Description: -

-

Fiction - Adult

Fiction : Erotica - Gay

Fiction / Mystery & Detective / General

Mystery & Detective - General

Erotica - Gay

London (England) -- Social life and customs -- To 1500.

Widows -- England -- London -- History -- To 1500. Medieval

London widows, 1300-1500

-Medieval London widows, 1300-1500

Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. [239]-246) and index.

This edition was published in 1994

Filesize: 35.67 MB

Tags: #Traditionally #widowhood #has #been #portrayed #as #a #positive #experience #for #women. #Was #this #the #case?

Richard Clarell, Esq., of Edgcote (or Ohechote), Northamptonshire (died 1478), ancestor of President George Washington

Wealthier widows who had planned for their bereavement had secure prospects but poor widows whose husbands did not have much wealth to leave behind struggled greatly and found it hard to live a basic livelihood. A Victorian Workhouse Chaplain in the City of London', London Journal, XXIII 1998 , 15-31; Andrea Tanner, 'The casual poor and the City of London Poor Law Union, 1837-1869', The Historical Journal, 42 1999 , 183-206; Bill Luckin, Graham Mooney and Andrea Tanner, 'Patient pathways: solving the problem of institutional deaths in late nineteenth-century London', Social History of Medicine, 12:2 1999 , 227-69; Graham Mooney, 'Public health versus private practice: the contested development of compulsory infectious disease notification in late nineteenth-century Britain', Bulletin of the History of Medicine, 73 1999 , 238-67; Andrea Tanner, 'Scarlatina and sewer smells, metropolitan public health records, 1860-1920', International Network for the History of Public Health Electronic Journal October 1999 ; Graham Mooney, 'The epidemiological implications of reconstructing hospital catchment areas in Victorian London', in M. Each takes the form of a computerized database in which it is possible to relate landlords, property values, residential occupants by age, sex, and occupation , and businesses to every house, building or site in the area.

Welcome to Oxbow Books

It will examine the connections between specialisation in production and specialisation in marketing in the provisioning of a major city. Using a geographical information system, the study will also undertake spatial analyses of the markets and fairs and the dates at which they were founded.

Medieval London Widows, 1300

Harding, 'Reconstructing London before the Great Fire', London Topographical Record 25 1985 ; D. FRIBA University of Cambridge Research Officer: Chris Faunch, B. The surviving records show that, despite being satirised by writers of the period, the law was becoming ever more important as a tool for individuals and groups.

Richard Clarell, Esq., of Edgcote (or Ohechote), Northamptonshire (died 1478), ancestor of President George Washington

Subject: The manor of Ohechote and advowson of the church there, held by feoffees during the attainder of the said Sir Robert in the first parliament of Edward IV. Moreover, the project will seek comparisons with the development of the merchant sector in other European countries. Women did more than gossip and slack off their work, which it was believed; they created strong interwoven ties to women from all walks of life, with large arrays of information which could aid them and their families.

Traditionally widowhood has been portrayed as a positive experience for women. Was this the case?

For earlier Cheapside property histories, see the and the Optical Glass and the Scientific Instrument Trade in London before 1750 Researcher: Anita McConnell, B.

London Women

Bate of the Poultry 1782-1847: the life and times of a scientific instrument maker Scientific Instrument Society, Monograph No.

Centre for Metropolitan History

Agnes Whittingham died in 1456, leaving four sons, Robert, Richard, William and John. Funded by: ESRC Ref: R000233157 1 October 1991-31 July 1994 Amount Awarded: £147,140 The second stage of this project switches attention from the years around 1300 when London achieved its peak medieval population see Feeding the City I , to the very different world of the later fourteenth century.

Review: [Untitled] on JSTOR

Toonen eds , Peasants and Townsmen in medieval Europe: Studia in Honorem Adriaan Verhulst Gent, Snoek-Ducaju, 1995 ; Derek Keene, 'London in the Early Middle Ages, 600-1300', London Journal, 20 no. How were these property developments financed and to what extent were speculative elements, such as building extra lettable office space, incorporated into both financial and physical planning? Galloway, 'One market or many? Huntingdon, yeoman in the Court of Common Pleas regarding a debt of eight pounds six shillings and eight pence.

Related Books

- Nihon no kenryoku jinmyaku
- Kcho - la columna infinita : del 8 de febrero al 7 de mayo del 2000, Palacio de Cristal, Museo Nacio
- Dirāsat fi al-mujtam‘ al-‘Arabi al-mu‘āṣir
- Grimey
- The rhetoric of terror - reflections on 9/11 and the war on terror