This elegant and attractive structure, north-east corner of Olive street and Broadway, was built and is owned by the bank, which occupies the first floor. Our space permits of only the summary sales in leading lines of merchandise — of wholesale and jobbing merchants — but the reader will find ample reference to all the leading industries of this city. A pneumatic tube is laid between the rails, with a piston running in it suspended from the train through a sealable slot in the top of the tube.
