Radio stanice uživo

Others suspect that it might be a transmission that signals the availability of another system -- like a dead man's switch, possibly even for Russia's Cold War-era Dead Hand fail-deadly system, which was to trigger ICBM launches if a nuclear strike from the United States was detected. Various fans of the station have begun the process of trying to decode the signal. It's currently very busy, however, so if you have difficulty tuning in, then try again later.
