Olympic Hotel: Seattle Landmark Since 1924

Finally, the city council designates a structure or site as a landmark, specifying the controls imposed. The City of Seattle has no power to nominate or designate any buildings as landmarks within the University's Metropolitan Tract, and we affirm the trial court.

Seattle's Olympic Hotel opens for business on December 6, 1924.

While the University does not contest the City's general power to preserve landmarks, it does contend that the City's power does not extend to structures owned by the State.
