Waiting for Godot

A detailed discussion of Beckett's method can be found in Pountney, R. The author, however, resisted these offers, except for occasional approval out of friendship or sympathy for the person making the request. Soon a boy shows up and explains to Vladimir and Estragon that he is a messenger from Godot, and that Godot will not be arriving tonight, but tomorrow.

Beckett was always grateful to the two reviewers for their support. Cluchey played Vladimir in two productions in the former room of the San Quentin California State Prison, which had been converted into a 65-seat theatre and, like the German prisoner before him, went on to work on a variety of Beckett's plays after his release. When told by Vladimir that he should have been a poet, Estragon says he was, gestures to his rags, and asks if it were not obvious.
