Railways: 29 Nov 2007: House of Lords debates

Meanwhile, a technical assistance team from the ADB has held consultations with senior members of the Railway Board and DFCCIL. Provided wider society, particularly local and national government and the National Health Service, is willing to provide sufficient resources without dictating to the local community then real change is possible.

Exeter and Teign Valley Railway

Nobody seems to know when this scenic section of single track will be repaired and reopened. However this increase has kept going during the entire duration of privatisation, with passenger numbers growing much faster than comparable European countries such as France or Germany. It was very well attended by some 200 people.

While the extent of inter-modal in the Delhi-Howrah segment can be assessed only after the exact alignments of the corridor are known, the Task Force believes that on the Mumbai-Delhi segment trucks moving on the National Highways would offer enough competition to the dedicated freight corridor. Expansion plans were curtailed or cut back and Sainsbury, despite having done a lot of preparatory work at Hayes Farm, announced in 2014 that he was postponing construction; it was generally understood what this meant. In order to provide a high top speed, yet still operate within the existing signalling system, it became obvious that everything needed to be overhauled — from suspension designs through to braking systems.

It is all just traffic arising which, despite your wider job description, you seem to do your best to accommodate without question. As a result, British Rail—although making some criticisms of Serpell—had to reconsider its position, and the pending appointment of a new chairman along the way obviously concentrated the mind marvellously.

Rail projects : When BL met BR

Quite often at Victoria you see queues of very frustrated customers at each and every ticket machine, trying to buy a ticket before their train departs. Yet one in three of those trains was more than 20 minutes late. I am not convinced that that will be achieved in practice on a route handling a mixture of fast express trains, suburban services and freight.

Services from the real north of England and Scotland would join the high-speed network outside the cities mentioned. Many would never stoop to using a local bus or train, and this goes for the majority of today's railway managers, who, like David Cameron being flown to Exeter before making his triumphal arrival in Dawlish, would only catch a local train for publicity purposes or when they can really do no other for the sake of appearance. A due diligence study has been carried out on the acquisition of new equipment for the entire commuter rail system in South Africa.
