An Interfaith Practice for the 21st Century

Witnessing to this trauma made them attentive to the movements of the Holy Spirit in profound and surprising ways. The first part marked the publication of the Christian Scholars Group's Seeing Judaism Anew: Christianity's Sacred Obligation, featuring many current and former members of the group. The aim is for those who lead universities in administration, academic life and student services to learn how their institutions might be more attentive and responsive to those of many faiths and beliefs.

The power of listening to the Peripheries: A traumatized Church can truly embrace the Pope Francis vision and offer a witness that is more accountable to the Gospel — by Cardinal Joseph W. Tobin, C.Ss.R.

And while this moment is in many ways unprecedented in the life of the Church, we can still learn from echoes of the past. It is certainly inadequate in relation to its present and, I hope, its future.

Pope Francis: 'A True Christian Cannot Be Anti

In the early second century AD, the heretic c. Personal Meditations for Holy Week March 15, 2005 A panel of four Boston College professors offered personal reflections on the meaning of the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus for Christians.
