Using urban stray cats as a study model, we tested for associations between the intensity of supplemental feeding due to cat caretaker activity CCA ; body condition; and immune phenotype bacterial killing assay BKA , immunoglobulin G IgG concentration, and leukocyte counts. Out data suggest that supplemental feeding influences immune phenotype, not only by means of energy provisioning, but also by potentially reducing exposure rates to parasite infections through stray cat behavioral changes.

Significantly, higher bacterial killing ability was observed in cats from high CCA districts, whereas significantly higher IgG concentration and eosinophil counts were observed in cats from low CCA districts.

Abstract : Using urban stray cats as a study model, we tested for associations between the intensity of supplemental feeding due to cat caretaker activity CCA ; body condition; and immune phenotype bacterial killing assay BKA , immunoglobulin G IgG concentration, and leukocyte counts. Whether you need to negotiate better terms in your career, as a parent, or just in dealing with other adults, she shares advice and case studies that will inspire you to clarify goals, overcome doubts, and set the terms for the life you want to live. Although increased availability of food sources through supplemental feeding is expected to increase the overall immunocompetence of animals, empirical data verifying the association between supplemental feeding and different immune parameters are lacking.
