Physical water scarcity metrics for monitoring progress towards SDG target 6.4: An evaluation of indicator 6.4.2 "Level of water stress"

So summer is now a deadly season: 70 000 people died from a 2003 heat wave in Europe , killer heat and drought are plaguing India, and the World Health Organization estimates that between 2030 and 2050 climate-related deaths from heat stress, malaria, malnutrition, and diarrhea will rise by an additional 250 000 per year. To help developing countries and countries with economies in transition the New Independent States and Eastern Europe meet this commitment, and to fulfill in part its own obligations under the Convention to provide additional financial resources to developing countries, the United States initiated the Country Studies Program CSP in 1992.
