The ambitious project Fitzcarraldo West Germany 1982 made headlines above all, among other reasons due to the difficult filming conditions in South America. In contrast to the set photos, none of the action from the film is recreated and the gaze of the person s being portrayed is frequently directed toward the camera. Radmann oversteps boundaries, falls out with friends, colleagues and allies, and is sucked deeper and deeper into a labyrinth of lies and guilt in his search for the truth.
