Hope swells for her successful recovery. Clementine stays, so Doc leaves for. UCLA film preservationist Robert Gitt edited a version of the film that incorporates some of the earlier version.

Darling clementine

Doc was a dentist, not a surgeon, and survived the shootout. Angry over Doc's hasty flight Chihuahua starts an argument with Clementine.

Darling Clementine by Dorothy Eden

The threesome soon learns that Tombstone is a lawless town without a marshal. And now, by George, he's almost matched it with My Darling Clementine. Joel mentions the song to Clementine when they introduce themselves, and Clementine sings the chorus to Joel on a train to Montauk.

Oh My Darling, Clementine

Chihuahua, a hot-tempered Latina love interest of Doc's, sings in the local saloon. Old Man Clanton then shoots Virgil in the back in cold blood.

Darling Clementine

Wyatt, who has been taken by Clementine since her arrival, begins to awkwardly court her. She claims Doc gave it to her. Written by Trivia can be seen playing the accordion in the saloon band.

Oh My Darling, Clementine

In the version released in 1946, Earp kisses her on the cheek. Berkeley: University of California Press.

My Darling Clementine (1946)

The gunfight was relatively unknown to the American public until Lake published the two books and after the movie was made. It is unclear when, where and by whom the song was first recorded in English, but the first version to reach the charts was that by recorded on June 14, 1941, which briefly reached the No. James Earp, who was portrayed as the youngest brother and the first to die in the story, actually was the eldest brother and lived until 1926.
