Othello: A Brief Production History

The author uses Macbeth to trace how each historical period viewed Shakespeare, reflected the play itself within specific production accounts, and the people who were the forces that created these various approaches. A Yorkshire Tragedy - written by Thomas Middleton, directed by Peter Malin. The Fair Maid of the Exchange - written by Thomas Heywood, directed by Dan Uzstan.

Excerpt: A Short History of Shakespeare in Performance

Cabaret Shakespeare - co-ordinated by Heather Violanti. Ram Alley - written by Lording Barry, arranged by Kelly Steele. Promptbooks, the marked copies of plays prepared for professional productions, are among the best evidence for details of staging, effects, costumes, and cuts and adaptations of the text.

Othello: A Brief Production History

Leonard Bernstein's 1957 West Side Story lyrics by Stephen Sondheim was a hugely successful musical version updated to 1950s' New York, where the feud was fought out between the street gangs of the Sharks and the Jets. In the first decade of the century, William Poel led the Elizabethan Stage Society in its traditional staging of several of Shakespeare's plays, with a simple thrust stage for fast-paced fluid action.

History

The 1900s The play remained very popular throughout the twentieth century.
