Settlers attack Jumma in the Chittagong Hill Tracts

Independent investigations have highlighted evidence of sexual and physical assaults on children and adults, inhumane living conditions and deteriorating mental health among many detainees: between 2013 and early 2019, 12 people have died in detention in Manus Island and Nauru, including two suicides. Unless the structural roots of this violence are addressed by the Bangladesh state, the cycle of violence will not end.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander women also experience poorer health across all areas compared with non-indigenous women.

Bangladesh

The census of 1872 was, however, very imperfect, and the actual growth of population has probably not exceeded what might be expected in a sparsely inhabited but fairly healthy tract. In Dhaka in the past one or two years there has been a noticeable increase in the numbers of under-aged girls working in the garment industry.

Since it became within a decade the leading foreign exchange earner of the country, there is no interest in putting any kind of restrictions on the garment industry. Chakmas also live in where it lasted between 1990 and 2012. In 1995, a study over women violation reveals that the incidents that had taken place from 1991 to 1993, the security forces had been involved in most of such violations.

PRESENT HUMAN RIGHTS SITUATION IN BANGLADESH

People who are detained on suspicion are subjected to severe beating, electrocution, water boarding, hanging upside down, shoving burning cigarettes on bodies etc. Users are free to read, download, copy, distribute, print or link to the full texts of articles published in FMR and on the FMR website, as long as the use is for non-commercial purposes and the author and FMR are attributed.
