Letters, Jefferson, Thomas, 1743

A visionary narrative of things seen and heard by a seafaring man. The paper was already reeling from having to fire its most prominent columnist for copying material from emails.

From Thomas Jefferson to Joseph Priestley, 9 April 1803

He read intensively, however, laying the foundation of his learning.

The Unveiling of Canadian History: The Approaching Conflict 1753

Enclosing a memoir and an address from a Prussian officer, for his grandfather's perusal. . The almighty has never made known to any body at what time he created it, nor will he tell any body when he means to put an end to it, if ever he means to do it.
