From Sydney slums to gay nuns: adapting Ruth Park's novels for the stage

Each character is allowed to present his or her inner thoughts and in this way the reader understands them all better. Ruth Park is a great author and I really enjoyed her books. Examples of this prejudice are repeatedly displayed in Harper Lee's novel To Kill A Mockingbird.

Ruth Park, The Harp in the South, and Australian English

A short classic story, if readers haven't sought this genre before I'd recommend it. I recall books such as To Kill a Mockingbird, The Catcher in the Rye, Lady Chatterley's Lover and Fahrenheit 451 were attacked. A story of the working poor in pre-war Surry Hills in Sydney.

The Harp in the South Resource

Filled with unforgettable characters such as Mumma, Hughie, Dolour and Roie, this is a story which really depicts a true description of life in an inner city suburb of working class and poverty stricken families. When she is told the young doctors are there to learn, she shuts her eyes tight.

The Harp in the South

I've noticed people can be very uncomfortable when confronted with difference — of opinion, of belief, of circumstance — because we're able to retreat from it.

CHARLIE MCCOY THE FASTEST HARP IN THE SOUTH 1974 MONUMENT NM/Shrink R12

The Harp in the South portrays the life of a Catholic working class Irish Australian family living in the Sydney Slum suburb of Surry Hills in the first half of the 1900s.
