Circulars

Except in the case of termination before completion of the Federal award, there is no governmental review of the actual costs incurred by the non-Federal entity in performance of the award. Each agency involved in infrastructure management typically has its own objectives and concerns. The process must both encourage communication and facilitate resolution of the conflicts that often arise among the diverse objectives infrastructure is meant to achieve.

Circulars

Out of Scope Comments Many commenters submitted comments that were either not part of the scope of the effort, were not relevant to the revisions proposed, pertained to sections of the guidance that were not proposed to be revised, or would be a change too drastic that would warrant a need for the public to have an opportunity to provide input before finalizing. In addition, procurements for goods and services that are directly charged to a Federal award must conform to the standards identified in this part.

Planning practice notes

Therefore, for indirect cost rates and cost allocation plans, the revised Uniform Guidance as of the publication date for revisions to the guidance become effective in generating proposals and negotiating a new rate when the rate is re-negotiated. This chapter describes the committee's conceptual framework for that assessment process.
