Inventory of Sponsored Projects

As an international graduate student at a Canadian university, you could be involved in research teams with faculty. Research priorities When determining our research priorities, our emphasis has always been, and will continue to be problems facing Canadian institutions and Canadian collections.

International research and collaboration opportunities

This community is extremely diverse and includes large federal heritage institutions, provincial archives, small volunteer-run community museums and art galleries, Aboriginal cultural centres, provincial museum associations and artists. To find Canadian information in international databases, you can add canada to your search terms.

Research and development

The category Students includes the following topics: characteristics, socioeconomic background, behavior, educational and occupational plans, accessibility, admission, performance, assessment, grades, attrition, financial aid, counseling, athletics, housing, and special types of students. Canada is recognized as a world leader in a number of research fields: clinical medicine, information and communication technologies, and psychology and cognitive sciences, to name just a few. It is also possible that not all major projects are included in the inventory, as some projects may not be publicly announced and some project information may not be publicized by companies for reasons of confidentiality.

Journals

Accordingly, students may follow a more structured series of courses and undertake practicums or internships.

Research and development

Approximately 250 current or recently completed projects reported by researchers in universities, community colleges, educational organizations, and government departments and agencies are described. For many years, Memorial published an annual Inventory of Sponsored Project.

Journals

You can think of synonyms or other ways of expressing your concepts, and combine them with OR -- e. Within this range of research, we have three categories defined by the nature of the work, the results, and the users of the results.

Inventory of Sponsored Projects

When you search in Érudit, you're searching within the full text of the documents. In addition, the inventory includes information on the value, timing and geographic location of projects.

Research and development

It uses scientific techniques or observation of samples to reach conclusions. Engage in seminars, courses, office hours, volunteer work, summer positions and much more. Learn more about the NRC's , including , , and programs.
