East Asian Studies

The field in Comparative Nationalism and Ethnicity focuses on the historical and technological conditions for the rise of nationhood, as well as the role of mass media, translation and the languages of power in nationalist discourses. Themes will alternate from year to year but may include: ritual and performance studies; religion and evolution; definitions of religion and theories of its origins; and the role of sacrifice. The requirement may be satisfied by exam or by taking an approved course.

Asia: Pre

While enrolled in the honors program, the student will undertake independent advanced study under the guidance of the student's honors thesis adviser. The requirement offers an exciting intellectual environment centered on the study of race, ethnicity and culture of the United States. Hung-Nin Samuel Cheung, Professor Emeritus.

Courses

The course therefore focuses on reading and writing including the correct use of grammar. How strongly can we sense their presence? What we must call culture, for lack of a better term, cannot be separated from the colonial moment and posited as an unchanging part of non-European civilization waiting for Europeans to uncover, interpret, document, or eventually reconstruct it.

Asia: Pre

Taking a comparative, cross-cultural approach to this topic will bring into relief the different ways in which neurodiversity is understood, depicted and expressed; and the unique difficulties with representation relative to the respective cultures we study.

East Asian Religion, Thought, and Culture < University of California, Berkeley

The overarching emphasis throughout the course will be on the hermeneutic difficulties attendant upon the study of religion in general, and Buddhism in particular. At the end of the sophomore year, students typically decide on a disciplinary or area focus or choose a comparative perspective involving one or more than one area or discipline in consultation with the Director of Undergraduate Studies and their assigned faculty adviser. Depending on research and training needs, a directed reading HSTRY 600 will also be supervised by Prof.

Courses

There are also periodic meetings with other seniors writing theses.

China's Hegemony: Four Hundred Years of East Asian Domination on JSTOR

The spirit of comparative study of documentary photography of China and other parts of world will be strongly encouraged. The lenses of Orientalism, Eurasianism and Internationalism will be used to analyze Russian interactions with three spaces: the Caucasus, Central Asia, and East Asia.

Courses

What role do secularism and spirituality have in modern art? Students wishing to count such courses toward their concentration requirements should consult the Undergraduate Office, as they may need to file a petition requiring approval by the Director of Undergraduate Studies. .
