By dint of steady application she wins within six or seven years a place for herself in the London literary world. In 1811 Browning's father married Sarah Anna Wiedemann.

Robert Browning: Poems Themes

It was with such newly gained belief that he recoiled from Shelley's mythopoeic, visionary expressions about a world that can be redeemed by poets who are the unacknowledged legislators of mankind. As the poem states, she referred to the region as ' White Cotton Night-Cap Country', and Browning changed the ' white' to ' red' in part to point up the bloody nature of his tale.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning

The poem deals with political events as seen by the poet from the windows of Casa Guidi, the great stone palace in Florence where the Brownings had an apartment. In mid-April they set out on a tour of northern Italy, and although they had intended to return to Pisa, they were so smitten by Florence that they decided to move there.
