THE MISSION OF THE WAR (1864)

Of this there can be no doubt, and I see in it the undeniable certainty that the war will never end except by the rebellion being crushed. Thus secession as a constitutional option had a history that predated the Southern concerns.

THE MISSION OF THE WAR (1864)

He possessed a powerful mind, not fond of technicalities: had a strong sense of justice, and was a great friend to liberty. His prudence, strengthened by parental care and example, was, no doubt, a safeguard to him in his youth, when exposed to the dissolute company which unavoidably attends a seafaring life; whilst the religion of Jesus Christ, influencing his mind, under the secret guidance of the Holy Spirit of Truth, in silent reflection, added, in advancing manhood, to the brightness of his character, and instituted or confirmed his disposition to practical good.
