Homelessness research: A guide for economists (and friends)

Poverty in the United States is highest among children. Thus in Model 1, the base model, the explanatory variables were segregation the dissimilarity index and the proportion of black residents in the CBSA, which is considered an important control variable that should be included in analyses of the association between segregation and health status. Despite rapid immigration and population growth, Asian segregation indices remained quite moderate in 1990.

The State of Housing in America in the 21st Century: A Disability Perspective

In the last three years, since 2001, the Section 8 budget nationwide has ballooned by 27 percent.

Housing for Seniors: Challenges and Solutions

Moreover, Asians are more highly concentrated regionally and found in a relatively small number of metropolitan areas. Project rental assistance contracts are approved initially for 5 years and are renewable based on the availability of funds.

Role of Senior Housing in Hospitalizations Among Vulnerable Older Adults With Multiple Chronic Conditions: A Longitudinal Perspective

Many others for various reasons do not apply. We conducted a literature review using the scoping review method.
