Robert Delaunay (1885

For the deep problem is still the problem of writing a kind of confession, a kind of truth. Bridget, by O'Hara and Berkson New York: Adventures in Poetry, 1974. They were master partiers and lovers - I mean master partiers and lovers!! This obsessive idea is above all a child of giant cities, of the intersecting of their myriad relations.

Frank O'Hara

Eighteen months later, his mother re-married. Guggenheim Museum, Robert Delaunay, March-May 1955.

Also, Picasso, if you didn't already know it, was an asshole. Painters, poets, sculptors, and musicians, from all countries, all cultures, classical and modern, met and mingled. Despite the somewhat casual method of composition he later became celebrated for and the colloquial air or ease of those poems themselves, O'Hara was from the start a skilled and knowledgeable poet, well aware, if not always respectful, of the long tradition of the craft.

It was not until O'Hara's Lunch Poems was published in 1965 that his reputation gained ground and not until after his sudden death that his recognition increased.
