Centre for Law, Medicine and Life Sciences

Sciences must have laws—statements of truth based on repeated experiments that describe some universal attribute of nature. These are some laws which he writes about giving us interesting anecdotes and trivia. The court agreed that patients have the legal right to refuse medical treatment, determined that honouring such a refusal was consistent with medical ethics, and decided that the parents of Karen Ann Quinlan could exercise her right to refuse treatment on her behalf.

The Laws of Medicine

Medical historians believe Italian merchants brought it to Europe when they fled the fighting in Crimea.
