The Substantive Law of the EU

This is because our Privacy Act does not apply to small businesses, employee data, and political parties, amongst others.

European Union brief

In such cases, it may be possible to rely upon the principle of mutual recognition as a legal basis upon which to market the material in Member States wherein legally binding national additives lists do not include one or more of the additives of interest. Australian exporters to Europe are likely to face millions of dollars in new tariffs after the European Parliament voted overnight to move forward with a carbon levy on products from countries lacking serious pollution reduction programs. Since the Lisbon Treaty's entry into force in 2009, the EU's external relations are managed by the High Representative, who is also a Vice-President of the European Commission.

European Union brief

The UK voted to leave the EU on 23 June 2016. Materials and Articles Made Entirely of Plastic The first step in establishing a suitable status in the EU for a food package composed entirely of plastic is to ensure that each monomer used in the production of the package is listed on the Plastics Directive.

Climate change: European Union enshrines net zero and emissions targets into law

The EU and UK have made clear that a transition period will then commence whereby the UK will remain subject to EU rules and regulations. This approach would help to relieve some of the pressure on the Commission to promptly move forward with EU legislation on specific categories of food contact materials beyond plastics.

Australia's economy can withstand the proposed European Union carbon tariff — here's what we find

Perhaps now is the time to move toward the use in Europe of a premarket notification system for regulating food contact materials similar to that adopted by FDA. Stinton said Google has benefitted from news through engagement with search users who link to journalism, the consumer data Google collects from publishers and from its revenue share from ads that are published with news articles.
