After the Coalition: A Conservative Agenda for Britain by Kwasi Kwarteng, Priti Patel, Dominic Raab, Chris Skidmore, Liz Truss 2011 Barely a year into the coalition government, a group of newly elected Conservative MPs set out an agenda for as distinct from the alt right , which sought to break away from Cameronism and bring economic liberalism and Euroscepticism up to date: arguing for free schools to be able to make a profit, tax cuts and a greater role for the private sector in the NHS. The book does an excellent job of analysing the pressures of fame and the responsibility of monarchy through the lenses of class and gender. The final three articles are groundbreaking comparisons across the Ottoman, Safavid and Mughal spheres.
