

Water in Palestine - problems, politics, prospects

PASSIA, Palestinian Academic Society for the Study of International Affairs - Jordan's Shadow State and Water Management: Prospects for Water Security Will Depend on Politics and Regional Cooperation

Description:-

- Iqbal, Muhammad, -- Sir, -- 1877-1938.
- Ionian Islands (Greece) -- History -- 1797-1815 -- Congresses.
- Miami (Fla.) -- Description and travel.
- Popular culture -- Florida -- Miami.
- Water rights -- Gaza Strip.
- Water rights -- West Bank.
- Water-supply -- Political aspects -- Gaza Strip.
- Water-supply -- Political aspects -- West Bank.
- Water resources development -- Gaza Strip.
- Water resources development -- West Bank.
- Water in Palestine - problems, politics, prospects

Notes: Includes bibliographical references (p. 207-248).
This edition was published in 2003

Filesize: 33.52 MB

Tags: #Water #politics #in #the #Middle #East

Can Palestine and Israel find common ground on environmental issues?

My impression is that Israel doesn't want to give up the occupied territories because it sees any concession to the Arab-Muslim world as a sign of weakness. It held out until the end in defending Mubarak; when it was clear that Egyptian president Hosni Mubarak couldn't survive, Washington acquiesced in his ouster.

Jordan's Shadow State and Water Management: Prospects for Water Security Will Depend on Politics and Regional Cooperation

The groundwater is replenished both by direct rainwater infiltration, particularly in the sand dunes along the coast, and by underground flows entering from the east. After boring under the lake, salt water is being pumped out and channelled into the lower Jordan River.

Palestine's water crisis: 50 years of injustice

Encouraging private sector led growth, it reported, would develop a sustainable economic base that could generate jobs and the resources needed by the government to provide essential public services. Power realities in the kingdom will change only slowly, however. Inbar, Moshe and Jacob O.

Water resources of the occupied Palestinian territory

Such an approach strengthens the narrative of the geographical and political separation of the Gaza Strip from the West Bank, treating Gaza as a standalone entity requiring its own energy-intensive facility for water. Moreover, government inspectors have the power to make searches and to uproot unlicensed trees at the expense of the owners.

---

Related Books

- Hugues de Salins, archévêque de Besançon, 1031-1066.
- Choice white pines and good land - a history of Plainfield and Meriden, New Hampshire
- Masekhet 'Avodah zarah - min Talmud Yerushalmi : 'im ha-perush Erets ha-Tsevi.
- Radiant past - ideology and reality in Hungarys road to capitalism
- Kiep phu sinh.