A Religion of Nature, Earth, Gaia

Eastern State Penitentiary changed the principles of imprisonment, focusing on reform rather than punishment. Alongside this religious fervor, transcendentalists advocated a more direct knowledge of the self and an emphasis on individualism.

Explaining the Existence of Religion and Beliefs

Have they read The Bible! It is, that so precious a gift, bestowed on a few, should have been withheld from the many: that countless millions of human beings should have been allowed to Eve and die, to sin and suffer, without the one thing needful, the divine remedy for sin and suffering, which it would have cost the Divine Giver as little to have vouchsafed to all, as to have bestowed by special grace upon a favoured minority. It takes the findings of modern science seriously, and thus is inherently naturalistic. Religion deserves much better than that.

Philosophy and Christian Theology (Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy)

And what had Christ supposedly achieved here, if he was God and it was impossible for him by nature to sin or do wrong? Middle-class women, in particular, played a leading role in reform activity. Fuller was a friend of Emerson and Thoreau, and other intellectuals of her day.

Explaining the Existence of Religion and Beliefs

I've written about religious festivals, from Christmas and Easter to Diwali, from Rosh Hashanah and Purim to Eid al Fitr, Iftar dinners and Noah's pudding. But university oaths and custom-house oaths, though in a religious point of view equally obligatory, are in practice utterly disregarded even by men in other respects honourable. The bank spokeswoman, a former senior journalist, told how her department was putting articles of widespread interest on their website, hoping the mainstream media would pick them up and run them, which was starting to happen.

The Nature of Religion

That reflects human nature, and the nature of news. So that destructive floods may be part of the order of nature, but the knowledge of this same order of nature makes it possible to halt forest destruction, impound waters, and change the process from destruction to service.
