The Hartford Convention, or Leap No Leap

We ask again, if these very identical persons are not precisely such men as the people and the public, upon all occasions, do honourably and confidently trust and employ? Boston , October 17, 1814. Westerners, mainly family farmers, supported expensive federal canal and road building projects in the Ohio River Valley. Christopher has served as an APUSH® exam reader, table leader, exam leader, and question leader.

Finally, to protect commercial interests, the amendments would have required a two-thirds vote in Congress to prohibit foreign commerce and to declare war, and would have limited the duration of any embargo to sixty days. Congress had voted to raise tariffs in 1828. Twenty-six New England Federalists attended the Hartford Convention from the New England states.

Hartford Convention for APUSH

Now, with the utmost earnestness and sincerity, we ask any candid, honest man, if he believes in his conscience, that these...persons...were capable of plotting a conspiracy against the national government — of exciting to a civil war — of leading to a dissolution of the Union — of submitting to an allegiance to George the Third? On the bank of the cliff is a monument with a bow of ribbons at the top.
