In other words, it was the only link to the rest of the civilized world for the miners who lived in the lonely, outermost extremity of the Keweenaw Peninsula other than what few ships came and went from Copper Harbor, Michigan's northernmost settlement. Tanker trucks may be more dangerous than regular large trailer carriers because of the weight distribution and the type of substance they are carrying, such as flammable liquids, pressurized gases, or highly toxic chemicals that are difficult to clean up after an accident.

Glaciers

It is likely that the material was deposited under the ice by flowing melt water during the recession of the glacier perhaps as a drumlin. There were approximately 1,600 Mandan living in the two villages at that time. Perhaps something like acid sand caused the excessive decomposition and altering of minerals at the Pit.
