If you woould like to read more about our courses and teaching, click on the button. Canterbury's prison is on the way to becoming student accommodation for Christ Church University, and is navigating its Grade II listing. It asks important practical, creative and ethical questions to help shape work that is safe and effective for all.

Arts + Prison: Transforming Lives Behind Bars through the Arts

Design and deliver collaboratively If at all possible, the objectives, strategy and staffing of the arts project should be devised collaboratively with prison or education staff.

How to... run arts projects in prisons: Advice from Dan Boyden

Most step through the prison gates with a poor and limited history of education. Incidentally, Wilde's unhappy old home, Grade II listed Reading, is now decommissioned, and another of those Victorian jails that will probably become a residential development.

Art Aid

Our work harnesses the uniquely transformative power of the arts to help individuals learn the skills and gain the confidence to live creative, positive and productive lives.
