Technologie

All formerly landless workers had received land, which eliminated this category altogether.

Land Reform Movement (China)

In the mid-1950s, a second land reform during the compelled individual farmers to join collectives, which, in turn, were grouped into with centrally controlled and an egalitarian principle of distribution.

Technologie

By 1958 private ownership was entirely abolished and households all over China were organized into state-operated communes.

Technologie

Together, taxation and compulsory purchases accounted for 30% of the harvest by 1957, leaving very little surplus.

Technologie

Some condemned as landlords were buried alive, dismembered, strangled or shot. This too was done in the name of discouraging excessive consumption. Leaders fought over such questions as the level of violence which was to be used; whether to woo or target middle peasants, who farmed most of the land; or to redistribute all of the land to poor peasants.

Technologie

For example, in Wugong village, 70 households out of a total of 387 households were converted from middle peasants into rich peasants, making them acceptable targets for class struggle.
