

Women in urban Africa.

African Studies Center, Michigan State University - Urban women at 'higher risk of chronic disease'

Description: -

- Urban women -- Africa.
- Women -- Africa -- Economic conditions.
- City and town life -- Africa.
- Women -- Africa. Women in urban Africa.
- African urban notes -- v. 2, no. 2-3 Women in urban Africa.
- Notes: Includes bibliographical references.
- This edition was published in 1976

Filesize: 44.81 MB

Tags: #UN #Womenwatch

Rural African women and development

Cuernavaca, Mexico: Instituto Nacional de Salud Pública, Centro de Investigación en Evaluación y Enuestas.

African Urbanisation and Urbanism: Implications for risk accumulation and reduction

All these uncertainties have implications on the governance of sensitive habitats and confound attempts to reconcile urbanization and biodiversity conservation on the continent. Mthembu J, Khan G, Mabaso M, Simbayi L.

African Urbanisation and Urbanism: Implications for risk accumulation and reduction

Economic Development and Cultural Change, 59, 313—344. IPV distresses families and communities. The proportion of urban women who were obese or overweight was 37 per cent, compared with 17.

UN Womenwatch

Maternal morbidity Maternal morbidity symptoms are assessed from enrolment to birth using a daily calendar. Journal of Human Resources, 47, 583—612. The substantial involvement of rural women in agriculture, primarily as unpaid or contributing family workers, highlights the importance of developing policies and programmes that address the needs, interests and constraints of women as well as men in the agriculture sector.

Women and the Informal Economy in Urban Africa

Assessing iodine intakes in pregnancy: why does this matter? Additionally, urban women who approved of wife-beating had a significantly elevated prevalence of all forms of IPV relative to their counterparts who did not. Total time spent on paid and non-paid work, disaggregated by sex, hours per week.

Urbanization in Africa: challenges and opportunities for conservation

Africa's urban population is expected to more than triple over 40 years, from 395 million in 2010 to 1.

Related Books

- Jumper
- Shadows on the mountain - the Allies, the resistance, and the rivalries that doomed WWII Yugoslavia
- Magic into art - the magicians renunciation of magic in English Renaissance drama.
- Clinical anatomy - a core text with self-assessment
- Aventura en los gris