Peruvian Economy

The main characteristic of this stage is the physical deterioration suffered by the organism produced over the years, as well as intellectual and sensorial capacity.

Social Problem

The Peruvian economy has experienced two distinct phases of economic development since the turn of the century. After we have developed a sense of self in adolescence, we are ready to share our life with others. However, if other stages have not been successfully resolved, young adults may have trouble developing and maintaining successful relationships with others.

Peruvian Economy

Potter et al 2008:3 describes post development as 'a radical reaction to the dilemmas of development' - however they are based on the failures of modernisation and thus revolves around the idea that development is a western construction in which the economic, social and political paraments of development are set by the west and are imposed on other countries to normalise and develop them in the image of the west. Peru is currently in the top five producers worldwide of gold, copper, lead, and zinc. Classification of Social Problems So far no universally accepted classification has been produced about social problem

Problems of Development Today

Every problem is relative and is also linked with one or more aspects of our life. This method is adopted by Russia and China, iv labour in disguised unemployment, largely confined to agriculture, is viewed as a source of investible surplus, v transfer of labour and capital from farm to non-farm activities etc.

The 7 Stages of the Life of the Human Being and its Characteristics

Average person dislikes work and will try to avoid it. It included highly rewarding novel tasks that required attention control and became progressively more difficult to perform

Development theory

If children do not learn to get along with others or have negative experiences at home or with peers, an inferiority complex might develop into and adulthood. Most development theory equates development with national economic growth and sees the state as its primary agent; consequently, one of its central concerns is to understand and explain the role of the state in development and the nature of government-market relations.
