Shared Experiences of Alumnae Inspire Coeducation Theater Project

From the very first rehearsals, I was struck by how an incredibly diverse group of artists formed a collaborative community in which both the discussion and practice of beliefs was respected and encouraged. All forms of the performing arts might allow kids to express any pent up emotions which they could be feeling.

Why Do Kids Need Theatre?

They are hard workers — though constantly stressed — and tend to operate on a diet of coffee and vending machine food. Other traditions appear to have originated in ways that are distinguishable from European theater which originated in Athens.
