COMUNICATO STAMPA

Martedì 28 luglio 2015 alle ore 21,15, si terrà la conferenza sul tema "Mosaici Paleocristiani: Composizioni da Gallia Plazida a Space Invader", presso la sede della S.S.A.M. - Scuola Internazionale Studi d'Arte del Mosaico e dell'Affresco, sita in via delle Acque 11/13 - Muria Romeo - Ravenna.

La conferenza sarà tenuta dalla dottoressa Linda Kallfisz, curatrice della collezione dei mosaici contemporanei e responsabile del Centro Internazionale di Documentazione sul Mosaico Museo d'Arte della Città. Il programma è a cura della dottoressa Deborah Gaeta.

Ravenna, diversa capitale dell'Impero Romano d'Occidente, diversa, nei primi anni del V secolo, un centro ideale di elaborazioni teologiche e simboliche e di manifatture artistiche.

I mosaici paleocristiani non è il prodotto di quello profano antico e non è nemmeno una ramifications di quello paleocristiano: si sviluppa come medium scelto interamente per altre esigenze, in questo caso quelle religiose.

Fra da subito e un giorno, salvo per eccezioni per il carattere esclusivo della Communitas (ingerenti, re e vescovi) per il preziosismo dei suoi materiali, per la raffinata realizzazione tecnica che sottendeva una certezza di artifici con altre componenti: i tanti secoli di distanza questa arte avrebbe vissuto recuperata nei suoi valori teorici, ma riconosciuta come linguaggio espressivo degli artisti contemporanei tra reinterpretazioni, chiusure, forme formali e spettacolarizzazioni.

L'iniziativa culturale rientra nel programma proposto dalla S.S.A.M. Scuola Internazionale Studi d'Arte del Mosaico e dell'Affresco a cura del prof. Valentino Montanari e della dottoressa Deborah Gaeta in collaborazione con la Provincia di Ravenna e il Comune di Ravenna.
